

While rewarding a disobedient child may be the last thing on your mind, positive reinforcement has been proven to be one of the most effective behaviour modification techniques. This is because instead of instilling fear and apprehension in your child, it focuses on positive behaviours which your child learns they are in control of.

